A Fun & Faithful Journey to Germany

Since 1634, citizens of Oberammergau, Germany have performed the Passion Play in their quaint, Bavarian village. The play – a theatrical production that comes to life every 10 years – symbolizes a faithful promise the town made when its villagers were spared from the Black Plague nearly 400 years ago.

This year, for the first time since the 1600s, the show was postponed thanks to another mortal threat (the COVID-19 pandemic). A postponement that affected 2,000 actors, singers and musicians prepared to reenact the crucifixion of Christ on stage and the tens of thousands of travelers excited to witness the spectacle.
